THURSDAY MORNING, JUNE 3.

The democratic party of the territory takes off its hat to the voters of New Mexico and assures them that its ticket will be the winner in 2-08 time in this year of our Lord 1886.

THE much talked of peace, love and good will meeting of the g. o. p. of New Mexico was a rousing farce—a comedy in one act. The actors therein were nothing but strolling players.

THE party of the southern half of the territory, popularly called the Rynerson wing, folded itself together and refused to come out and be comforted by the unctuous pleadings of the wheel bosses that met and exploded in resolutions at the historical love feast of June 1.

It goes tumbling down the ages as the "Hen Convention." The chickens must be clucked together once more. It looks to the man with good visual organs that the republican party of New Mexico will require something besides sulphur to tone it up to a healthy condition of existence.

COLONEL FRANCISCO CHAVEZ, with his usual facility in the manipulation of a meeting where the brethren want peace, carried the bakery under his arm during the painful strivings of the members of the Albuquerque conference for harmony. The colonel is one of those fixtures in republican politics who will not be torn from his fastenings.

THE Albuquerque juxtaposition was just what THE GAZETTE claimed it would be. The straddler, the man with a lugubrious turn for harmonizing, who climbs upon the shoulder of each faction and whispers his soothing words of peace and love into the ear of the rampant obstructionist, was there in full blossom. Like the flowers that bloom in the spring, he is more noted for his fragrance than his utility. The epitaph may be written on the tombstone of the republican party of New Mexico, "There is no peace." "All below is rottenness and dead men's bones."

JOHN A. LOGAN and J. G. Blaine are fixing up the fences for 1888 without doubt. They will not take the track as the same old team, however, it looks as if each was casting about for some good running mate. If Mr. Cleveland should conclude that he cared to occupy the presidency at the expiration of his present term of office, for another four years, the Blaines and Logans would again go to the ground, being knocked out by the popularity with which Grover Cleveland is drawing to himself every day not alone the mugwumps, but thousands of republicans throughout the country.

The Sticking Point in the Home Rule Bill. Clause 24 of the Irish home rule bill, which it is said Mr. Gladstone is willing to abandon in order to placate some of the radicals, runs as follows:

On and after the appointed day Ireland shall cease, except in the event hereinafter in this act mentioned, to return representative peers to the house of lords, or members to the house of commons; and the persons who, on the said day, are such representative peers and members shall cease as such to be members of the house of lords and the house of commons respectively.

The appointed day referred to is that on which an Irish parliament shall meet in Dublin. It is provided in a clause following that such of the Irish representative peers as may not wish to become members of the "first order" in the Irish parliament may remain in the British house of lords. The representation dies with them, however.

"No," said a bankrupt merchant, sadly, "advertising doesn't pay. I tried it just before I failed, so I know what I'm talking about." "What newspaper did you advertise in?" "Not any newspaper. I posted 500 dodgers on a barn just out of town, and I'm a sinner if a wind storm that same night didn't scatter that barn over a ten-acre cow pasture. Don't talk to me about advertising."—New York Sun.
